Ceban cause. A correspondence with the officials at New York disclosed the fact that what the Cubans were most in need of was arms and ammunition. After considerable discussion a plan of action was adopted. A committee was appointed to raise funds to purchase a thousand stand of arms and equipments, purchase a thousand stand of arms and equipments, they succeeded far beyond their anticipation, and the result of this meeting was that instead of 1,000 stand of arms being purchased, 5,000 stand of arms and complete equipments were purchased; four sailing vessels were charfered; the arms were cautiously losded, and at favorable opportunities all of them sailed for a destination near Cubs. Three have been heard from as arriving safe; the fourth it is thought has met with some difficulty as nothing has been heard from her. But the fact that three out of four of the vessels arrived safely has been plete equipments were cautiously laaded, and at favorable opportunities all of them sailed for a destination near Guba. Three have been head from as arriving safe; the fourth it is thought has net with some difficulty as nothing has been heard from her. But the fact that three out of four of the vessels arrived safely has been very encouraging to those who sent them out, and other expeditions of a similar nature are outer way; and it is thought that one will be ready for departing in a few days. From a source that your correspondent believes trustworthy, comes the information that one of the large Government from clads, which was putchased by private parties not long since, is being guil from for privateering. She will be heavily armed, and named almost exclusively by Americans. A promisent ex-naval efficer of the late war will command her, and an English officer of rank will be her executive officer. Of course nothing definite at present can be said in regard to the iron-clad, as it is considered to be one of the mesh, if not the most, important movement yet undertakenth for the most, important movement yet undertakenth for the most, important movement yet undertakenth for the graph of the properties of the control of annumentation, medical and commissary statistic and privates of the late war. for a few minutes he characteristically replied "The Pear is not yet ripe."

The Cuban sympathizers here are very sanguine that the Cubans will be recognized by the powers that be at Washington before many weeks. They assert that the President and all the Cabinet are in their favor and that it cannot be a great while yet before the Cubans will be strengthened by the official approval of this Givernment.

And now something as to what the Cubans themselves are doing in this city. Compared to New York and New-orleans this city has but few Cuban residents. But without exception those few are doing all in their power to aid their struggling brethren. At the outbreak of the insurrection a Junta was formed here, and preparations made for earnest and vigorous assistance. A large room was hired on Archest, and a liberal sum of money contributed to place the organization on a firm basia. Another large room was bired for the purpose of instructing the Cubans in the manual of arms, and other warlike duties. A company of over 50 young men was speedily raised. After a few weeks instructions men were sent to the seat of war, since that time squads numbering from five to 30 have been sent on. A fine body of men, nearly all Cubans, are at present waiting transportation. They are under a steady course of training, and will be valuable recufferenents to Gen. Cespedes. Thus far every man that has left this city to join the patriotic army in Cuba has been fully armed and d will be valuable recuforcements to Gen. C. The expedition that left New-York hast Tuesday night, had several men from this city aboard.
They left here at noon on Tuesday, and embarked for the

A gentleman from this city accompanied the party to the the safe departure of the expedition. He states that the steamer carried a greater quantity of arms and ammunition than was ever before sent at one time. Among the most valuable of the cargo was several pieces of cannonfive (Parroit) 42 pounders, three Dahlgrens, and several field pieces. There were also aboard of the same steamer about 8,003 rounds of ball cartridge, 1,503 kmapsacks for the army in the field, about 6,000 stand of small arms, with equipments, a large number of Colt and Reminston

The action of the Cuban authorities in New-York in 200 making public at present the proclamation made by the officers of the Cuban army in the field, and many prominent citizens resident in Cuba, declaring the object of the insurrection to be the annexation of Cuba to this country, has met with general approval here. But perhaps a brief explanation of the facts connected with this proclamation or address would be interesting. Early in the menth of March last, the efficers of the Cuban army, and many of the prominent Cuban residents met in council. The result of their deliberations was an address to the American people, in which was set forth the admiration of the Cubans for this people, their great desire to become a portion of the United States, and declared the objects of the war to be nanexation to 41 is country. The official document was received at headquarters in New-York in April. The address was translated, and it was the intention to furaddress was translated, and it was the intention to funish a copy for publication to all the leading papers the country. A few days before the time when the a iish a Coly . A few days before the time when the contintry. A few days before the time when the contintry and the second was called and it was decided not to publish the address until Cuba is free, on the grounds that it would be more manly and dignified to wait until they had accomplished their independence, and then ask to be admitted to the Union of the colors.

such is the spirit of the proclamation, this action As such as been said, needs with the universal approval of Americans and Cubans here, who state that it will do much to bring them into general favor with the people of the United States.

The President of the New, York Cuba Committee and several of its prominent members are expected to arrive in this city to-morrow, and it is reported by reliable parties that an expedition is being rapidly put in shape for a vorage to a certain Southern port.

AID FOR CUBA.

To the Editor of The Tribunt.

Sin: In the issue of The N. Y. World of this date, a sensational article on the "Cuban Question" appears, a portion of which the indersigned desire to contradict, as calculated, and as we believe, intended to appears, a portion of which the undersigned desire to contradict, as calculated, and as we believe, intended to misrepresent and do injury to an organization designed to win for suffering Ireland the liberty which the brave Cuban patriots are fighting to gain for Cuba. In The World's report, it is stated that "an officer lof bigh rank in the Cuban forces has entered into negotiations with the Fenian Brotherhood of this city, who have expressed their readiness to add him in his enterprise." and also that the Colourlof a Ferrian regiment of 400 men, "whose headquarlers are at the corner of Broadway and Fourthest. has at last closed with the terms proposed to him," and that the Cuban patriots are therefore zure of this acquisition to their force. Each and all of the above assertions are false and unfounded, as the publishers of The World could have ascertained, had it suited them to do so. Every Irishman who loves liberty must sympathize with and wish God-speed to the Cuban patriots in their efforts to liberate their native and and establish themselves as freemen, controlling their own affairs, and following out their manifest designed for the rescue of Ireland from British tyranny, and for nothing else; and no officer connected with it has power to negotiate with any party whatever, in its name, for any other purpose, In like manner, all Penian military organizations are earolled to light-for Irish liberty; and any officer who might undertake to divert them to any other purpose would not only fail in such attempt, but would meet with instant dismissal and disgrace for conduct which could only be characterized as a willful betrayal of a holy would not only fait in disgrace for conduct which only be characterized as a wilfful betrayal of a cause. ALBANY.

AN EXCITING DAY IN THE SENATE-THE FIGHT OVER THE NEW-YORK TAX LEVIES.

ALBANY, May 9 .- Although both branches of the Legislature were in session to 21 o'clock this morning, yet the tax levies prevented a final adjournment. It was an eventful day in the Senate, and the Republican party of the State, and the taxpayers of your city, cannot be too grateful for the firm, unflinching course of 16 Republican Senators. One man -of course it was Mattoon-joined the Democracy in helping to force the tax levies, as amended in the House, through the Senate. There were grave hints thrown out that one or two other Republicans would likewise prove false, but the different ballots proved these rumors and assertions false, and showed that there was honor enough left in the Republican party to make the dishonor of Mattoon more apparent. The levies were not reached until the afternoon, about six o'clock. Then a Democratic Senator moved to concur with the House amendments, but this was voted down. Then Senator Crowley moved the appointment of a Committee of Conference, consisting of two Republicans and one Democrat. The Senator said, that in making this motion, he did it through no disrespect to the Chair, but simply because the Republicans were in the majority, and he thought they were entitled to have the majority of the Committee. This was voted down by Mattoon joining the Democrats, making the ballot a tie, and giving the Lieut.-Governor the casting vote. Gov. Beach then announced as the Committee Messrs. Crowley, Creamer, and Genet. Mr. Crowley declined, on the ground that he represented the majority, and yet would be in a minority. Then Kennedy was announced in his place, and he declined, so did Chapman and Hale, and then Senator Banks, a Democrat, was substituted. The Conference Committee met that of the House, which was composed of Messrs. La Bau, W. W. Campbell, Tuttle, Irving, and Hitchman, and in this place it may be stated that there was a job put up in the House to take the appointment of the Committee out of the hands of the Speaker, but he announced his committee before they had a chance to get in theirs. The Conference committees were in session two hours, and of course could not agree. The Democrats insisted on the Assembly bill, and the Republicans resisted, the report was made to the House which discharged the Committee and the bills were again sent to the Senate. Here Senators Creamer and Tweed championed them and tried to get them adopted, but Senator Crewley very cleverly beat them by parliamentary tactics, and Senator O'Donnoll assisted in fillibustering. By this means a direct vote on concurring with the House amendments was staved off. The vote each time stood 15 to 15. Humphrey was absent, but was paired with Nichols, while Mattoon voted with the Democrats on every motion. It was a dramatic sight to see him in his seat, with hundreds of eyes centered on him from the lobbies, and the quiet sneers of the Democrats as apparent to him as any one else. Senator Morgan, during the debate, referred to Mattoon in this manner:

"Gentlemen of the Democratic party, to push through this infamous bill, one Republican has betrayed his party. Take him in all his virtue and his parity; you are wel-come to him, but let us see if another Republican dare place a similar brand on his forehead."

Then O'Donnell arose and protested against legislating on such a bill on the Sabbath day [it was then 2 o'clock in the morning], and pointing to Mattoon, said: "You Democrats have debauched one man, let us adjourn and stop these disgraceful proceedings," His motion was lost, the Democrats and Mr. Mattoon voting "Nay," and the Republicans Yea." Mattoon remained in his place all the time, and appeared to be perfectly stolid and indifferent. Then there was some more fillibustering, during which Senator Williams made a neat little speech, which was much commended by his Republican associates, and which was to the effect that a decent regard for the divine and moral laws of the country should prompt the Senate to adjourn. The motion to that effect was then carried. The Tax Levies will come up to-morrow, and it is likely the Democrats will consent to cut them down, as it is almost a hopeless task to get another Republican to join them, and they cannot pass them until they do.

Out of all the underground projects, one only has gone through, and that is the same as passed last year. Then the wheels in the House were greased, and this year a similar operation was gone through with, and with the same result. There were strong hopes that Gen. Swain's project would be carried through the House, but the project was too rious to receive the sanction of that incorruptible body. Senator Tweed helped to push it through the Senate, but the "strikers" made a raid on the House, and have beaten it so far. There is a possibility that it will pass to-morrow. If it don't, it will be because their money is spent. The Central underground has the same incorporators and the same routes as in the bill of last year. The charter, however, is more liberal. The Democrats made another desperate effortin the House yesterday morning to push through the bill abolishing the charter election in your city, with an amendment tacked on to allow the Mayor to legislate out of office the Croton Board, but they did not succeed, and therefore they will try it again to-morrow. Republican votes alone can pass it.

In justice to Mr. Kilham, it should be stated that he did not vote with the Democrats on Friday nightand the recording of his name on that side was a mis take. Mr. Randall, who was put down as dodging has been sick at home for two weeks. E. Ely, who was placed in the same list, was legitimately absent at the time. The Governor has signed the Bribery bill, so that all those men who are said to have been chested by a certain notorious Senator can now have the opportunity of getting even without any harm accruing to themselves. The bill making extraordinary appropriations for the repairs of the canal was amended in the House yesterday, so that the amount of tax is reduced oneealf, and it will only be collected for this year. The Senate disagreed to the amendments, and the Democrats were trying last night to get the House to recede, but it would not. It will probably be settled to-morrow. If the Democrats consent to cut down the levies, the Legislature can adjourn sire die tomorrow. Everything depends on one Republican Both Consolidation and Central scrip bills have gone to the Governor. It is said the Governor refuses to sign the Eric Directors' bill.

HAVE WE A REPUBLICAN LEGISLATURE!

To the Editor of The Tribune. Sin: Have we a Republican Legislature? Nominally we have, but really the unjority are as much under the control of Tammany Hall as is the Common Council of New-York, and they sell their votes here as openly and notoriously as they sell their produce or goods at home. The majority of the Republican members and Senators are honest, true men, and do their best to stem the tide of venality and corruption; but their efforts are fruitless. Witness the slaughter of the Republican Tax Commission in the House of its friends the other day, where recreant Republicans were bought and paid for like shoep in the market. To-day a still greater wrong has been perpetrated. The Underground Railroad bill, to give our citizens quick and rapid transportation from the upper to the lower end of the island, and save to New-York hundreds of millions of dollars now yearly driven over into New-Jersey, was beaten in the Senate, only receiving fifteen votes-all the Senaors from New-York and Brooklyn voting against it, or refusing to vote, which amounted to the same thing EYou will of course publish the names of these men, that the public may see who is responsible for this thing, and who are controlled by Tammany Hall and the Surface Railroad Rings; who are working against all attempts to give your Island steam communication, or any improvement in the present wretched means of transportation. The law to authorize the construction of this road was asked for by the most emi-nent and public-spirited citizens of New-York, headed by that eminent and well-known gentleman, the Hon. William B. Ogden, perhaps the most successful railroad builder of our country, who, with other gentlemen, only wanted the opportunity to put their money in this much-needed enterprise, and take their chances of success. Why the Representatives from New-York, why any honest man should object to this, we leave to your read-bell, Folger, Thayer, and others, who worked actively and effectually for this measure. Yours in haste. Albany, May 7, 1869.

GEN. CUSTAR'S PRISONERS AGAIN ON THE WAR PATH-RUMORS OF THE CAPTURE AND ES-CAPE OF VINCENT COLLYER AND ESCORT.

St. Louis, May 9 .- The Republican has a letter from Camp Wachita, dated April 23, which says: "Since the 19th, 20 lodges of the Cheyenne Indians, belonging to the band under Little Robe, who surrendered to Gen. Custar on the edge of Staked Plains, during the latter part of March, left here without permission of the proper authority. This makes 120 lodges captured by Custar who have started north to join Tail Bull on the Kausas border, making at the lowest estimate 600 warrio a now ready for hostile demonstrations in the vicinity of Republican. Solomon, and Saline Creeks, north of the Arkansas River. The Indians expressed contempt for the military here. A rumor is rife in the camp that Lieut. Jacobs and 15 men of the 6th lufantry, who were sent as an escort for the philanthropist Vincent Collyer to Fort Bascom. New Mexico, were attacked at the head of the waters of the Washita River, and held two days by the Indians, when they escaped under cover of the night. The report comes from Indian sources. The experiment of reaching the natives the art of agriculture is progressing slowly. Some seeds were already sown by the farmers and the laborers employed by the Government. The affiliated bands, composed of Cadds, Wacos, Kichle, Wichita and Towakara bands, have all planted corn and some garden vegetables on the land prepared for them by the sub-Agent, Mr. McCusker. It must be remembered these tribes raised corn for the last century unaided by the Government. The Knowas and Comanches, on the contrary, are averse to labor, and look on the matter as entirely too degrading for them, and only adapted to the poore class, as they latter part of March, left here without permission of the labor, and look on the matter as entirely too degrading for them, and only adapted to the poorer class, as the term the affiliated bands. Five acres are to be broke for each chief of a band, and farmers are to be kept among them to thoroughly test the experiment.

IBY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE I BALTIMORE, May 9 .- The pastoral letter of he most Rev. Archbishops Spalding and Suffragan, prelates of the province of Baltimore at the close of the tenth provincial council, May, 1869, was read in the Catholie Churches to-day. On the subject of education the letter

"Bitter experience convinces us daily more and more that a purely secular education, to the exclusion of a religious training, is not only an imperfect system, but is attended with the most disastrous consequences to the individual and to society. Among Catholics there can not be two opinions about this subject, and we are happy to see that this practical truth is beginning to find acceptance also in the minds of reflecting men among our separated brethren. While we are gratified at witnessing so many intelligent persons throughout the country embracing the true faith, we are obliged to confess with sorrow that a greater number are lost to the Church. There is no expectation in saying now what hishop England felt it his sacred duty to state many years ago, that hundreds, may thousands of souls annually stray away from the fold in this country on account of their early religious education. If we look for the descendants of those numerous Catholic families which have emigrated to this country during the past and present century, we will find that many of them have wandered away from the faith of their fathers, and not a few of them are now ranked among the most active and unrelenting enemies of the Church of God. The only way to arrest this evil which we deplore, is to make ample prevision for the moral and religious training of our youth." " Blitter experience convinces us daily more and more

The currency, which was then at the rate of 130 gaundes to an American dollar, had depreciated more than 200. It was reported that the populace were almost driven to desperation by the want of the accessaries of life, and had threafened to pillage the town. The English Minister and the captain of H. B. MUSIC.

THE PHILHARMONIC CONCERT. The sixth and last of this seasor's Philharnonic Concerts took place at the Academy of Music on Saturday evening. The programme was musically the weakest of the series, but the crowd was something awful even to remember. Three quarters of an hour before the performance began every seat was occupied, and thenceforward until 8 o'clock the jam in the aisles and lobbies grew every minute; thicker and thicker. The following was the programme:

Overture, "Iphigenia".
Concerto for piano, G usior.
Mr. Chartes H, Jarria.

"Manfred" Sollloquy by Mr. Kilwin Booth.
Chorne, quartette and solos by the Liederkrans Society.
Overture, "Oberon" Weber.

far of these four pieces. Grand in style and charmingly compact in treatment, it leaves upon the mind a feeling of delicious repose and satisfaction. There are no loose ends of thought imperfectly woven into the texture; no scraps of melody left hanging to tantalize the memory; but the theme is simple and direct, and its elaboration perfect. It was performed with great delicacy and intelligence, yet we cannot say that it produced a very deep effect, for upon a miscellaneous audience such music rarely makes its due impression.

Mr. Jarvis, who made in the Beethoven concerto his first appearance in New-York, is a Philadelphia pianist of high repute. He has a clean, bright touch and a good technique, and in a small room we dare say would be heard to much better advantage than in the Academy of Music. It must the very remarkable piano playing indeed which does not suffer by contrast with an orchestra such as that of the! Philharmonic Society. Mr. Jarvis's playing is not very remarkable; it lacks character and force. Morcover, there are very few planists who can grasp the subtile spirit of Beethoven, and Mr. Jarvis is not one of them.

The chief feature of the evening was the interpretation of Schumann's "Manfred" by Mr. Edwin Booth, the Liederkranz Society, and the orchestra. This work, as our readers probably know, is an illustration of Byron's poem. Schumann wrote for it an overture (which was played at the first Philharmonic Concert last season), and some incidental vocal and instrumental music, and Richard Pohl of Leipzig condensed it by recasting parts of the poem into narrative prologues, and leaving what he supposed to be the finest portions to be declaimed as a soliloquy. It has never before been performed in America, and to fit it for the use of the Philharmonic Society Mr. J. H. Cornell has turned the prologues into English, taking, as he assures us, a great many liberties with Herr Pohl, and keeping as near to Byron as possible. His task was an ungrateful one, and we are not disposed to criticise the execution of it, albeit the double dilution of the bard by both Cornell and Pohl has produced some curious effects. Indeed, we may say that the whole performance was more valuable as a curiosity than as a work of art. Music and declamation are very apt to kill each other, and except in three or four passages we found the "Manfred" tame. The overture is by far the best of it. The choruses are few and short; the principal one is a "Hymn of the Demons," wonderful for its strange fire and its wild effects; and there are two quartettes-one for male voices onlywhich need much better interpretation than they received on Saturday to be fairly appreciated. A good deal of the solitoquy is accompanied by soft music, and in the passage where Manfred is saved from suicide by the chamois hunter, a beautiful effect is produced by the introduction of a shepherd's pipe in the distance playing a simple rustle air, which contrasts singularly with the passion of the poem. Mr. Booth read with rather more than his usual mannerism, and less than his usual fire. His Manfred is a melancholy soul, with a tendency to deprecation-consumed with the sadness of disappointment, not as Byron painted him, with the fierce, proud grief of a fallen spirit. Contemplating perpetually his own wretchedness, pitying his own sorrows, listening to his own moans, he loses the dignity with which the poet invested his creation, and the awe which ought to be inspired by sin, and mental torture, and the presence of spirits of the unseen world. Yet in several places Mr. Booth's declamation was superb. The dialogue between Manfred and the Witch of the Alps was excellent, and the farewell to Astarte produced a very deep impression. The reader, of course, was greeted with a tumult of applause, both at the opening and the close, and was several times rather inopportunely inter-

The overture to "Oberon," with which the concert closed, was charmingly performed, but after the vague-ness of "Manfred" one hungered for rather stronger meat. The last two concerts of this season in fact have been strangely deficient in the highest kind of music which the l'hitharmonic Society is established especially to interpret. We fear it is getting too prosperous.

ROSSINI'S MASS. The performance of Rossini's Mass last night at St. Stephen's Church was so much better than the performances at the Academy that it seems a pity the work should ever have been given on the stage. It was not vanits added the effect of association to the sweetness of religious song, for there was no solemnity about it. The church was filled with a chattering crowd of gay people, the altar, of course, was dark and bare, and there was nothing in the assemblage to remind one of sacred things -unless it were the complete insufficiency of the ushers. The building, however, was well suited to bring out the full effect of the chorus, and the organ supplied a full ness to the choral passages which was lacking in the previous performances. In the great fugue of the Gloria the value of this addition was especially apparent. As a whole, the execution of the Mass was more than ordinarily spirited and careful. Madame Testa added new glery to her former triumph. In the Agnus Dei it is not too much to say that she sang magnificently. Autonucci was in admirable voice, and displayed unusual animetion; Boetti was spirited and painstaking, and Miss Keilogg exerted herself successfully in the Crucifixus, though the effect of the solo was injured by the substitution of the organ for the orchestra as an accompaniment, this accompaniment consisting entirely of abrupt chords, for which an organ is certainly unsuitable. Mr. Schreiner played the offertory piece, and we found it very dry.

"Lurline" will be sung at the Academy of Music alternately in Italian and English. For the Italian nights the cast comprises Miss States, Madame Testa, Theodore Habelmann, and Antonucci; in English the work will be rendered by Miss McCullogh, Mrs. Annie Kemp Bowler, Brookhouse Bowler, and Orlandini.

THE DRAMA.

WOOD'S MUSEUM.

The new pantomime troupe appeared at this house on Saturday evening in "Robinson Crusoe." The performance that was given, however, was little more than a dress rehearsal. Enough was done, though, to show that the new troupe is uncommonly strong in the talent and beauty required for this particular order of entertainment. To-night's representation will doubtless be freed from the grave defects apparent on Saturday, and will thus be more worthy of critical consideration. DRAMATIC HOTES.
